

MONA MOJAVERI

SCULPTOR
TEHRAN - IRAN

ARTIST STATEMENT

Mona Mojaveri (b. Iran) is a sculptor exploring the intersection of fragility and violence. Her practice includes figurative sculptures and object-based works, ranging from small hand-held pieces to larger installations.

Driven by concept rather than a single material, she works across bronze, ceramic, paper clay, and resin. She selects each material based on its physical properties to express psychological and social tensions, focusing on the contradictions of human behavior, desire, and the quiet violence embedded in everyday life.

Impact*, 2016
Bronze
Dimentions variable

Impact freezes the moment when two bullets collide in midair. Rather than destroying a body, the forces built for violence meet each other and become useless. The work speaks to the confrontation of powers—political and military—that always aim outward. In this suspended collision, violence turns against itself, leaving a strange space between hope and grief.

Infinite Army, 2019
Mirror, Plastic Toy Soldiers,
Mixed Media
Dimensions variable

A mirrored cube containing rows of plastic toy soldiers, pointing their weapons at one another. It is a closed system of violence—an infinite loop with no exit, no victor, and no enemy except the reflection itself.

Spinning Top, 2017
Fiberglass and Resin
130 × 100 × 90 cm

Teeth and blades, designed to wound. But it doesn't spin anymore. The predator has become a fallen object.

Subject / Object (Series), 2017 – 2018
Bronze
Dimensions variable

A series of small bronze figures exploring the duality of the aggressor and the victim. In these works, the one who inflicts the wound and the one who receives it are the same entity—both fragile and dangerous, both subject and object.

Tehran, 2019
Concrete
20 × 20 × 35 cm

The city we carry inside us. Heavy, unfinished, and always under construction.

What it takes to claim a place. The desire to possess leaves them wounded and exhausted. And now they are stuck guarding the very thing that broke t
